Impressing is the impact of the sociocultural environment on a person during critical periods of ontogenesis, leading to the formation of an aspiration for certain types of activity, a stable and fruitful passion for it

The peculiarities of impressing making it difficult to study: individualization, selectivity, momentariness. Hence there arises poor predictability of the impressing

Predictor as means of prognosis

Predictors of impressing - predisposing (prognostic) factors of its occurrence

The procedure for constructing predictors of impressing is the identification of the most probable factors of its occurrence and their integration into complex predictors

Scheme of theoretical construction of predictors of impressing in accordance with the model "predictor - corrector"
